Mayor Fitzgerald yesterday criticized the G. C. A. finance committee, the Massachusetts Association for the Blind, for their activity in the city last month, because the committee had secured the election of the city clerk, and the school committee, the mayor said.

The mayor appeared for his bill to limit the expenditure of money in municipal elections in the city of Boston. He offered the amendment to the city clerk's bill, and the school committee, the mayor said.

MARY MEYER IS NEAR DEATH

The war has accounted for years in the death of the charge, the onset of the powder, the battle of the bullets and the toll and stress of the march, those who were young, old age or wounds badly forced retirement.

There are instances of this, too, in human life. Our right here in Boston, where Miss Mary T. Meyer, for five years secretary of the Democratic city committee, is her hardest worker, faithful custodian of the records and the real "boss" in the drug business, has been so severely stricken that she is now a mere shadow of the woman she once was.

A broken heart is not the medical term for the ailment which is fast killing Mary, as she was affectionately known for two decades to the politicians of this city. But lately it is looking clear that she was stricken from her position on the committee when it was reorganized a year ago. Miss Meyer has failed steadily in her work, and her physicians say she is only a short time away from death.

Began as Young Girl. Hopeful to defeat, patient and even cheerful under the most difficult situations the committee faced, always faithful and discreet, there never will be another "Mary" fast like her in the political history of Boston. There are stories that she was not always paid even the small salary attached to her job. When Miss Meyer became executive secretary of the committee political conditions in Boston were much different than now. She was a slim slip of a girl, very cheerful and bright eyed. She was appointed by Matthew Kennedy, then the political ruler of the North End. With Patrick Maguire he controlled the Democratic party in this city. It was not long before her sound common sense, her faithfulness and discretion were recognized, and she was consulted by the leaders. In the strenuous times when it was a real battle to get delegate lists and nominations before the City Committee for the official ballot, she was a participant in many stirring scenes.

Always With the Party. "Mary" was with the party through thick and thin, in triumph or defeat, always calm and unruffled, always discreet, always at work. She was the great spirit in the party on the free silver issue; she was the heart of the party on the city locally, saw one faction after another get control, and finally witnessed the triumph of the party of a City Committee with almost nothing to do and with little or no power under the latest political development in Boston. Most people would welcome a rest after twenty years of such work, but to Miss Meyer it was as if a vital cord had been cut. Within a short time after she had left the committee she began to fail, despite all her efforts to become interested in other lines. Now she is in bed, and there isn't a day when she doesn't think of that last day when she was told that she was not to be there.

and Above All BY AFFECTION

Let the man who wants to improve the human race diminish poverty and ignorance and give OPPORTUNITY and HAPPINESS to mother and child. Sometimes the flow's as big as his roar;
Mostly, however—I'll state as before—
"They who puff loudest aren't doing the most, Heroes aren't always the fellows who boast."
Take it from me, while you're eager and young,
"Loudest of all is the car with one lung!"
